HOME PRESS.

Lord Cromer's report for 1906 has been received with much satisfaction at home, and the Press' joins in a unanimous choras of praise of his clear and statesmanlike pronouncement on the administration of Egypt, and the important questions affecting the country which are at present prominent in the public mind. We append a few excepts:

"Times"; Lord Cromer's annual report upon the condition of Egypt is always 'singularly instructive, but, owing to various incidents during the course of the last twelvemouth, the report for 1906, which has just been issued by the Foreign Office, deserves unover them usual attention, and no part of it will be read with more interest, or may be studied with more profit, than the portion dealing with the so-called "Matoinalist" movement, which we publish this morning in full. A good deal of vympohyb has been expressed with the movement in, this country, not always wisely or cannot be a superior of the country of Sir Elaward Grey's speech was received by both sides of the House was received by both sides of the House and the great, feeling, who has been compelled to hand over his life's who has been compelled to hand over his life's work through failing health was shown. When the Secretary for Foreign Affairs concluded his speech the Hon A. J Baffour rose. The regret, he said, which Sir Edward Grey has expressed would be felt in an unqualified degree by every member of every party of the House of Commons and "throughout the country, History alone ould give an adequate But we know enough and can survey with sufficient accuracy the magnitude of that work to feel how marvellous are the mornily material labours which he has gone through and to admire the manner in which, under interlabours which he has gone through and to admire the manner in which, under international and other-diffic tities, he had carried through the great task of his his life.

Referring to Sir Eldon, Gorst Mr. Balfour said that all who knew him recognised his great abilities, how unequalled was his knowledge of recent Egyttin developments, and, above all how anxions he was to carry out intact the pulicy so marrellowady accomplished by Lord Cromer. We wish him every subcase.

lig submitting the annual report the committee have pleasure in recording the continued success which has attended the work to the Home, and the increasis in numbers awaiting themselves of the benefits afforded. That of last he demand on the resources of the Home should have so largely increased is not surprising, considering that during the six years which have passed since the opening of the presen building, the trade of the port has augmented by over 50 %, and there is has augmented by over 50 %, and there is reason to believe that in the near future it reason to believe that in the near future it will be doubled. To meet the demand as far as will be doubled. To user the demand as far as circumstances admit, has been the constant endeavour of the committee.

In the mouth of November arrangements were made for taking in the crew (25 all the control of the committee of August and Suptember batches of a committee of August and Suptember batches of the committee of the months of August and September batches of men were received into the Home under somewhat similar circumstanes. The machinery for levelling the lands was, during the past year, much improved by the purchase of aix of Mesars J. & H. McLaren's itage "Hasshight," or levelling scoops, which have now been brought up to a great state of perfection by this enterprising firm. The acquisition of these machines has rendered it possible to reduce the company's lands of more continuous and uniform slopes across the land from the low level cannel that runs through the estate to the railway on one side or the desert on the other, thus making the final selling value of the land greater and enabling the red flood water to deposit its slit more uniformly lover the land, consequently, though the 'steam engines and deposit its silt more uniformly beer the land, consequently, though the 'steam engines and tackle now do fully double the work they were doing before we acquired those new "Hassis-blels," our general manager has decided, rather than accelerate the progress of the levelling as far as area is concerned, to do the work in a move thore of manner than if the work in a move thore of manner than if the work in a move thore of before. In all about 550 feetdams were levelled during the year.

FLOOD

The flood of 1906 was a fair average one and the deposit of silt on the levelled lands was very satisfactory.
